

Child Sustained Attention

The purpose of this study is to determine the mean duration of child attention to a self-selected toy and to determine the longest duration under which teaching condition children attend to toy play (child choice, adult choice, or adult presentation). Two- and three-year-old children will be observed under each teaching condition and data will be collected on the child's duration of child attention.